Grant Funding for Transit Services for Disabled, Elderly Residents. The city of Glendale has once again received federal grant funding for transit projects, at a crucial time when budgets are being hit hard all over the Valley.

City staff aggressively pursued additional grant funding, much of which is targeted to serve elderly or disabled residents. The funds total more than $2.3 million. Glendale participated in a competitive process along with other Valley cities and was awarded funding for several programs.

The first of the grant awards will provide funds to replace three Dial-a-Ride buses and reimburse transit vehicle maintenance expenses.

A second grant was awarded through the New Freedom program, which funds programs providing services to persons with disabilities, encouraging public transportation alternatives to address needs beyond the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA.) The existing Glendale programs that will be partially-funded through grants, which totaled $342,179, are the Taxi Subsidy Program, the Bus and Gus Individual Training (BAGIT), the Bus Buddies Program and Gus Bus, route 3, which primarily serves disabled and elderly riders. The Taxi Subsidy Program provides a three-quarter subsidy for persons with special transportation needs, assisting those making repetitive trips for medical treatments and therapies, such as dialysis and chemotherapy. The BAGIT and Bus Buddies programs educate residents, particularly seniors and those with special needs on how to use the public fixed route bus system and the Gus Bus.

The two remaining awards are transit facility grants that will fund pre-design and design work for a centralized transit center in Northwest Glendale. The pre-design phase will establish the scope, concept and location of the transit center, and the design work will also establish a plan for project implementation. The total amount of grant funding received from these five awards is $2,338,947. Some of the grants are 100 percent federally-funded, while others require some portion of a local match. The Regional Public Transportation Authority will provide $51,403 towards the local match for the purchase of vehicles, and the remaining local match, totaling $630,582, is available in the Transportation Services capital and operating budgets.

Renting Facility Space in Glendale Just Got Easier. The city has facilities that can accommodate a full range of events – from a birthday party with 10 attendees to an elegant wedding with 13,000 guests. And venues range from the Amphitheater in Downtown's Murphy Park to the Foothills Recreation and Aquatic Center here in the Cholla District. But reviewing them all in one place wasn't possible – until now.

Glendale employees through the city's INNOVATE program have developed a one-stop, web-based approach to booking meeting space. Now facilities located in 14 areas of the city can be viewed in a single glance on either an area map or on a color-coded chart that lists capacity and the type of events each facility can handle. The event categories include:

- Meetings and conferences
- Social events and parties
- Sports Complexes
- Weddings
- Concerts and performances

Web users can move from the overview page and link to more details on any facility that catches their interest. They can learn about rental rates, availability and other details that help ensure they choose the place that best fits their needs. The same is true for those who call in to book a facility. If their first choice isn't available, city staff can use the same web-based system to refer callers to other appropriate city facilities.

The Glendale system is unique in that regard. Glendale is the only Valley city that's created such a user-friendly way to check out all its available rental space. The new system was developed with all in-house resources by involving people from seven departments through INNOVATE, a city program dedicated to "transforming ideas into action." INNOVATE works to improve customer service, increase efficiency, and help the city conserve resources or generate revenue. To view the city's available spaces for rent, click here.

Voting boundaries are being re-drawn. Get involved in the process! Every 10 years following the U.S. Census, voting boundaries are looked at to ensure that each voting district is close to equal size and meets other legal requirements. Se modificarán los límites de los distritos electorales. ¡Participe en el proceso! Cada 10 años después de un censo de los EEUU, se revisan las demarcaciones electorales para comprobar que todos los distritos electorales son aproximadamente del mismo tamaño y cumplen con otros requisitos legales.
